Description :

PDF-cf188 | In the first half of the nineteenth century, the most impressive sculptural monuments in America were under construction in Baltimore. Before New York, Philadelphia, and even Washington, D.C., the city built a monument to George Washington, and Baltimore commissioned the country's first public monument dedicated to those killed in battle. After touring both these sites in 1827, President John Qu... Outdoor Sculpture in Baltimore: A Historical Guide to Public Art in the Monumental City
